

TABLE OF CONTENTS

STUDIES 1

Tomasz Mika, Magdalena Pastuch

A new synthesis of the history of the Polish language – current state of work on the concept

Artur Rejter

Historical-linguistic research towards the new humanities

Beata Raszevska-Żurek

The analysis of the variability of the concept as a perspective for historical semantics

Joanna Przyklenk

MEMORY in historical linguistic research. Shared places – own places

Katarzyna Sicińska

The ending of the letter in the correspondence of the 17th and 18th centuries as an etiquette macroact

Paulina Michalska-Górecka

Between the sequative name and expressivism – the case of a 16th-century szwermer

Jarosław Pacuła

19th-century folk songs as sources for exploring the history of Polish thieves' jargon: A study based on works collected by Oskar Kolberg

Janusz Szablewski

An overview of the tendencies for the development of dative-locative syncretism in Slavic languages

Rafał Zarębski

French-Polish bilingualism from the perspective of historical sociolinguistics (on the example of Marysieńka Sobieska's correspondence)

Iwona Żuraszek-Ryś, Dorota Szagun

The history of the Polish language and Polish language glottodidactics

Irmina Kotlarska

Old materials for teaching Polish in an English-speaking environment as sources for researching the history of Polish glottodidactic discourse

Barbara Mitrenga

Polish historical-linguistic education in academic didactics (in the face of tradition and contemporary challenges)

VARIA 2

Aleksander Kiklewicz

Approximation as a principle of linguistic behavior – on the example of the category of voice in Polish

Ryszard Wyleciol

A short analysis of the conceptualisation of the notion [I] based on selected examples in English, Polish and Italian. A cognitive approach